Bennett Won't Run; Draft Ward Movement

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Attorney General Bruce Bennett, considered as a candidate for Governor, ended speculation today and announced he would seek a second term in the summer's Democratic primaries.

Bennett, 40, paid his $600 filing fee to Secretary of State C. G. Hall, and filed his corrupt practices pledge.

"Should the people of Arkansas honor me with re-election, it is my thought that I can best serve them as attorney general for the next two years," Bennett said in a prepared statement he handed to newsmen. "I am humbly grateful for the many kind thoughts expressed in our behalf these past several months."

Newsmen asked what he meant by "many kind thoughts." Bennett explained that "a lot of people" had asked him to run for governor. He said, however, he had never decided to seek the gubernatorial nomination. Rather, he had "looked the situation over" and decided to try for another term as head of the state's legal department.

PAYETTEVILLE (UP)—A student movement to draft Chancellor Lee Ward of Paragould for governor gained momentum on the University of Arkansas campus today.

A group of students stationed themselves in the union building at the start of classes and offered "Judge Lee Ward for Governor" petitions. In 1½ hours, the leaders reported more than 100 signatures. Jack Davis of Eenton, president of the University student body, was one of the youngsters. With him were Jim Youngdahl of Fayetteville and John Harkey of Batesville.

Davis indicated that a group of students interested in drafting Ward as a candidate met Monday and decided to set up the petition desk. Davis said his group had no connection with the University Young Democrats club, and their action was in no way an outgrowth of any antagonism.

Congress Told Action Needed to Beat Russia

By TOM NELSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Dr. Werner von Braun told Congress today "vigorous action" is essential to overcome Russia's "obvious lead" in exploration of space. He said it won't be easy but "must be done."

Von Braun, one of the Army's top missile men, was the leadoff witness in hearings by the newly created House Space Committee, headed by House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.).

Meanwhile, a memo prepared by the committee staff signaled possible trouble for some aspects of President Eisenhower's proposed new civilian space agency. The memo made no specific proposals but said some parts of the President's proposal "bear noting." Specifically it said Congress would have no control over the 17 board members who "would wield considerable authority in the new agency."

It also noted employees could be paid salaries comparable to those of industry without regard to federal pay scales. This, said the staff, is "very far-reaching" compared with powers given other agencies.

Von Braun, who played a leading part in developing the Army's two Jupiter satellites now circling the globe, said in a brief opening statement Russia's space lead must be "overcome as quickly as possible."

He said this country can meet the challenge of outer space exploration only if it will "discontinue our unfortunate practice of supporting only such research and development that serves immediate military objectives."

"Or scientists should be free to pursue their efforts without continual worry about a program cancellation putting them out of business and thus destroying the team they have built up," Von Braun said.

It may be "wise," he said, to have some overlapping of programs and thus "instill a bit of competition between teams." But he said "free and full" exchange of information must be kept up to avoid "costly duplication."

Hope Church Winner of Contest

The local Gospel Tabernacle has been engaged in a Sunday School Attendance contest with the Bartlesville, Oklahoma First Assembly of God Church for the ten Sunday period, Feb. 9-April 6.

Competition has been very keen and the telephone call each Sunday informing of the progress of the contest was of special interest to both congregations. A percentage basis was used in determining the amount of gain based upon the previous quarters' average.

Easter Sunday brought out the largest crowd that the Tabernacle has had during the ministry of its present pastor and helped to show a lead of .03 percent overall gain over the Bartlesville Assembly.

The Rev. H. Paul Holdridge, pastor in Bartlesville, has already sent his congratulations to the Hope Church. The award is to be a beautiful lawn register board.

Unemployment Shows Decline in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK (P)—Unemployment in Arkansas continued to drop last week, State Employment Security Administrator James Bland told the Advisory Council of the Employment Security Division Monday.

Bland said 16,029 persons were receiving Arkansas unemployment benefits the week ending last Saturday and another 6,785 were claiming benefits against credit earned in other states for a total of 22,814 receiving unemployment benefits. The total the previous week was 23,482 and the average for March was 23,061. The high was in February, when the total averaged 24,406.

Last year, the total for the week comparable to the one ending last Saturday was 17,240. The week before that, the total was 16,508.

Bland said $324,042 was paid in benefits last week to workers covered by the state unemployment insurance law. This compares with $227,050 paid the comparable week in 1957. Another $31,792 in federal funds was paid to unemployed federal workers and to unemployed veterans last week, Bland said.

The council in its two-hour meeting heard Bland report on the three proposals in Congress to extend benefits to the unemployed. The administrator told the council if one of the bills passes, and if Gov. Orval Faubus has Arkansas enter the extended program, the employment security division will set up trips by representatives to all counties in the state.

The representatives would handle applications on a local level, rather than handle applications in the area offices.

The advisory council discussed proposal changes in the operational procedure of the division and re-elected Henry C. Armstrong of Fort Smith as chairman.

The council will meet again next September to continue the discussion of proposed changes, which if approved will go to the 1959 legislature.

Conviction of Brewster Is Reversed

WASHINGTON (UP)—The U. S. Court of Appeals today reversed the contempt of Congress conviction of Frank Brewster, former boss of the Western Conference of Teamsters.

The court ruled 2-1 that the Senate investigations subcommittee which called Brewster to testify in January, 1957, had exceeded its authority.

The court also reversed a similar conviction in the case of Nugent Lapoma, former secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 174 in Seattle, who also refused to testify before the subcommittee.

Brewster, who was sentenced to one year in jail and fined $1,000—the maximum penalty—has been out on bond pending outcome of the appeal.

Lapoma had been fined $1,000 and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence.

President Vetoes Flood Control Bill Including Millwood Dam Project

Seek Votes to Override Farm Support Veto

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate Democratic leaders hunted for Republican votes today to help override President Eisenhower's veto of a bill to prevent a cut in farm price supports.

Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee said he thought there was a "good possibility" of getting the necessary two-thirds Senate vote to override the veto.

However Sens. George D. Alken (R-Vt.) and Milton R. Young (R-N.D.), who both want the veto overturned, doubted the votes could be found. Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson predicted Monday the veto will stand.

Alken said he could see a maximum of no more than 50 votes to override. This would be six votes short of the necessary two-thirds if all senators voted.

The President vetoed the bill before Congress started its Easter recess. It would freeze government farm price props and crop ceilings at 1957 levels and bar price support cuts already ordered by Benson.

Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson said Monday the veto could be overturned only if the Democrats received "substantial support" more than he knew to be available from Republicans.

Benson meanwhile reported that farm income is up and farm prices have reached their highest point in nearly five years. He told a news conference Monday the developments have been "a source of strength in the so-called depression."

He added that the rise in unemployment has not "significantly" affected purchases of food.

He said farm income in the first three months of this year may have been near an annual rate of 13 billion dollars compared with a yearly rate of 71,709,000,000 in the same period of last year.

Most of the rise in income reflects a "real improvement" in prices rather than inflation, he added. He predicted farm income will continue higher for the rest of 1958 even if prices on vegetables and other farm products may go down somewhat.

Charges Russia Propaganda Is Peace Menace

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today charged that Russia is endangering world peace by prostituting diplomacy for propaganda purposes.

Dulles, in an angry outburst at his news conference, used the words prostitution and debauchery in describing Soviet use of diplomacy.

Dulles emphasized nevertheless that the United States is prepared to sit down with Russia at pre-summit meetings at any time to press for peace.

He said he hopes that such pre-summit ambassadorial talks will begin in Moscow in a few days. But he did not know the exact day. He said the West is still working on a reply to the latest Soviet communication suggesting the discussions start Thursday.

A Dangerous Development
Dulles discussed the possible summit situation in a lengthy question and answer meeting with reporters until he finally exploded on the propaganda issue.

Dulles said the Soviet Union for the first time in world history has debauched and prostituted the diplomatic machinery for pure propaganda purposes. He said he believes this is one of the most dangerous developments that could effect world peace.

If they are going to destroy this machinery, Dulles said, the Russians may have to pay a heavy price for what they are doing. He said the Soviets may destroy a fruit reed of sincere diplomacy upon which world peace rests.

On other subjects, Dulles also said it is fair to conclude Russia has developed difficulties in trying to launch a third earth satellite. He said his statement was not based on firm information but was fair speculation or an educated guess.

Quits Moon Race
—Voiced doubt about reports that Russia has experienced a major nuclear accident. The reports suggested such a mishap may have been behind Russia's unilateral nuclear test ban. But Dulles said tersely he doubts that is the explanation for the Russian maneuver.

No Clemency Planned For Earl Leggett

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Gov. Faubus said Monday he has no plans to grant clemency to Emmett Earl Leggett, convicted killer sentenced to die in the electric chair.

Leggett, convicted of the killing of 14-year-old Joe King of Jacksonville in December of 1955, but has received reprieve since he was first sentenced to death.

The Arkansas Supreme Court, which recently upheld Leggett's death for the second time, has yet to send to Gov. Faubus its mandate of the finding.

Faubus said he would set the new execution date when the mandate comes to him.

Highway Bill Expected to Go in Next Action

By UNITED PRESS

President Eisenhower today vetoed the $1,578,812,000 rivers and harbors authorization bill—the second time he has rejected the so-called "pork barrel" legislation in three years.

The President told Congress in a special message that it was "with real regret" that he found it necessary for the second time in two years to veto a rivers and harbors authorization bill.

He said he approved many of the projects in the measure but vetoed it because "others are not justified."

Democrats had advanced the bill as an anti-recession measure. But Eisenhower said that it could have little immediate effect.

Matthias Statement
In a telephone statement at 2 p. m. today Roy L. Matthias executive vice-president of the Red River Valley association, Shreveport said:

"I am bitterly disappointed in learning that President Eisenhower has vetoed the rivers and harbors authorization bill, which included the authorization for Millwood and the upstream dams on Little River."

"Unquestionably the president has taken the advice of the Budget Bureau, which has advised him this bill should be vetoed."

"The president took the position his administration has already done enough to combat the business recession and therefore this public works legislation is unnecessary—which I consider to be weakest kind of reasoning."

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower told Republican congressional leaders today he objects to certain features of two bills the Democrats have called anti-recession measures.

The president's objections, increased speculation that he might veto the two—the $5,500,000 highway construction bill and the $1,578,812,000 rivers and harbors bill. Congress passed both before adjourning for Easter.

"The President must act on the rivers and harbors bill before midnight tonight and on the highway bill before midnight Wednesday. Otherwise, they become law without his signature."

Generally Fair Weather Promised

By UNITED PRESS

Weathermen today promised generally fair skies and balmy temperatures for most major league baseball openers from coast to coast.

There was a threat of rain at Cincinnati, where the Redlegs host Philadelphia, but elsewhere clear skies were seen for California and from the Plains eastward through the Great Lakes and into New England.

The major rainfall areas during the night were in the Pacific Northwest and the Southeast to the Ohio River Valley.

A disturbance along the Gulf of Mexico spread rain as far north and southern Illinois and east into the interior sections of the south Atlantic states. The heaviest night time rains soaked Memphis, Tenn., with 1.7 inches and Pensacola, Fla., with 1.1 inches of water.

A surge of cool Pacific air moved over the Washington coast, causing gale warnings to be posted and increasing rainfall from northern Oregon through Washington.

Texan Wins Moscow Contest

MOSCOW (UP)—Van Cliburn, of Kilgore, Tex., received a gold medal and the Russian equivalent of $2,500 today as a prize ranking him among the world's leading exponents of Tchaikovsky's music.

The 23-year-old pianist won first place in the international Tchaikovsky piano contest that wound up here Sunday. Another American, Dan Pollack, of Los Angeles, finished in ninth place.

Other foreigners in the final round included Liu Shi-ann, a Chinese who tied with a Russian for second place; Bulgaria's Milina Mollava; France's Nadia Goddard; and Japan's Toshiaki Matsura, who placed sixth, seventh and eighth respectively.

But the two Americans got an especially roasting reception. They were applauded tumultuously whenever they played, and afterwards were besieged with requests for autographs.

"I wouldn't take a million for this trip. The people have been so wonderful, and I'll never forget them. It was real Southern hospitality," Cliburn said.

Cliburn injured a finger during the contest, and he hasn't touched a piano since Friday, when he played the final concert that crowned the prize.

Uncertain Future for Child's Father

WASHINGTON (UP)—An uncertain future today confronted a young father who risked a prison sentence to be near his dying daughter.

Robert Backover, 28, of suburban Hyattsville, Md., was under a doctor's treatment following his collapse on learning of 6-year-old Paul Backover's death Saturday night.

Backover finished two weeks before Christmas. About the same time, police reported $2,300 had disappeared from the bowling alley where he worked.

At the time of Backover's disappearance the little girl was sick with what appeared to be a virus infection. Soon she was hospitalized, and doctors diagnosed her illness as leukemia—cancer of the blood.

The little girl told her nurses "I'd get well if daddy came back."

Backover came home after reading a United Press story in a Los Angeles paper.

For a time, Paula seemed to rally despite the odds against her. She came home for several weeks and her parents bought her a bicycle. But last Tuesday she had to go back to the hospital. She went into a coma and died Saturday.

Firm Against Tax Cut

Knowland, however, persistently refused to say whether the President disclosed his intentions on vetoing or signing the two.

He did say the administration is holding firm against an anti-recession tax cut at this time and that there is "no indication of any change" in other administration plans for countering the business slump.

"No tax legislation is immediately being proposed or contemplated," Knowland said.

Other economic developments:

Congress was under growing pressure to enact excise (sales) tax cuts, but lawmakers said no heavy demand has built up yet for general income tax cuts. Several members said they found many constituents contacted during the Easter recess to favor lower excise tax cuts on autos, freight and other items.

—AFL - CIO President George Meany asserted in identical letters to all members of Congress that the nation "stands on the brink of depression." He urged Congress to adopt the AFL - CIO's anti-recession program, which includes a recommended 10 to 15 percent dollar reduction in income taxes for lower and middle income groups and in excise taxes.

Road Bill Objection

Knowland said Eisenhower objected to some of the water development projects authorized in the rivers and harbors bill because they did not conform to standards which Congress itself set up. Some Republicans have disputed Democratic claims that the measure was primarily an anti-recession bill. They labeled it an "old-fashioned pork barrel" bill.

Eisenhower vetoed a similar bill in 1956 on grounds that it included too many projects not previously approved by the Army Engineers or Budget Bureau.

As for the highway measure, Knowland said, Eisenhower objects to a provision that would increase on a temporary basis federal aid to help finance construction of primary, secondary and urban roads—the so-called A-B-C roads system—which is not part of the new interstate highway network.

Bennett Rules on Arkansas Primary Law

By LLOYD HOLBECK

United Press Staff Correspondent

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Attorney General Bruce Bennett issued a 19-point opinion Monday, interpreting the Arkansas Primary Law passed by the 1937 legislature and held constitutional recently by the Arkansas Supreme Court.

Bennett met with Democratic and Republican party leaders to discuss problems of application of the law that ordered the minority party to nominate by primary rather than by convention.

Bennett and the party leaders concluded, among other things, —That the parties hold separate primaries.

—That a candidate for a county, district or state office must be designated as a party nominee in a primary.

—That the ballots may contain as many as 300 names.

—That more ballot boxes will be necessary to hold elections.

—That few persons will be able to vote in each precinct.

—That even county committee men must be elected in a party primary.

Many Names

Belotti Taylor, a member of the state Democratic committee, said that in Pulaski county alone more than 300 names will be on the ballot because every justice of the peace will have to be listed. He estimated there are about 300 justices in the county, whose names would be on the ballot in addition to other candidates for county, district and state offices.

Bennett pointed out that because of the length of the ballot, it will take a voter at least five minutes to mark his ballot. This means, he said, that fewer persons will be able to vote at a precinct. He explained that voting places are usually rushed at closing time, and under state law a person must be in the voting place when it is closed—not in a line outside.

The sizes of the ballots themselves will be larger, Taylor said, and fewer can be put into the boxes. That will require the Democratic party to provide more boxes. He estimated the cost to the party would be increased by about $150 per additional box.

Separate Elections

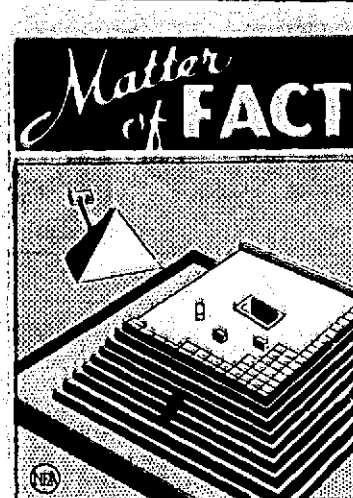

Bennett said the Democrats and Republicans must hold separate primary elections under the decision of the Supreme Court in the Newton county case.

Each party must name three judges and two clerks and an alternate for each, plus one ballot for each precinct in a public meeting not earlier than three weeks before the preferential primary election, Bennett said. And if the minority on the county central committee cannot agree on election officials, it may appoint one judge and one clerk, with the majority naming two judges and one clerk.

Bennett said the parties don't have to have the same number of ballot boxes and polling places in each county. He cited a 1947 law which said the original predicts are designated by the county clerk.

These ballot boxes were properly designed for women and men to make dramatic exits.

The Great Pyramid, near Giza Egypt, was built about 3,000 B.C. by King Cheops (Khufu). His son, Chephren (Khafra) built the Second Pyramid, only a little smaller than his father's. In measuring out the base of the Great Pyramid, the king's engineers made less than 1 inch error in 750 feet per side. The next king, Menkaura (Mycerinus), built the Third Pyramid.

clinks are designated by the county elections committee, but said they can be changed by a party's county central committee not less than 30 days before a primary.

"It is apparent," he said, "that the county central committee of a political party could designate an entire county as a voting precinct and install one or more boxes therein."

One Per County

But, Bennett said, when there is only one precinct in a county, only those qualified electors living in the geographical area of the office up for vote may cast a ballot for that office.

"Should Joe Doe be a candidate for constable of Henderson Town ship in a county designated as one precinct, then only those qualified electors living in Henderson Town ship could vote for that particular office," he explained.

Bennett said the county committees are not required to hold primary elections, and if a county does not, that will not prevent names of candidates for state of fice from being on the general election ballot in the county.

He said a person can be a party nominee for a municipal town ship post in the general election by one of two methods — if the party holds a primary election, the candidate must file and run in the primary; or if no primary is held the candidate may be nominated by a petition signed by not less than 10 electors of the municipality or township.

Single Party Vote

The attorney-general said Democratic party rules require that a person vote in the Democratic primary only, and cannot vote in the Republican primary too.

Arkansan Up on Income Tax Evasion

JONESBORO (UP)—George F. Florida of Osceola was found over to a federal grand jury here Monday and released on $2,000 bond he had posted when he was arraigned.

Florida is accused of failure to pay the government $14,000 in income taxes for the year 1951.

Florida's brother, Andrew J. Florida, was scheduled for hearing on a similar charge Monday, but U.S. Commissioner Carson Booth postponed it until June 9 because of Florida's reported ill health.

He is accused of failure to pay the government $134,000 for the year 1951. The complaint said he paid taxes on $21,000 income, when it should have been on $205,000.

VIENNA (UP)—Father Albert Hevera, a Roman Catholic priest, is among 15 defendants being tried in Communist Czechoslovakia for alleged war crimes in 1944. Prague Radio reported today, The priest was indicted on charges of inciting members of a Fascist Slovak group to murder Allied prisoners of war.

has stated that a voter could not vote for a Republican candidate for county judge in the Republican primary box and then go over to the Democratic primary box and vote for the Democratic nominee for Congress," Bennett said.

Prospects for Defense Plan Some Brighter

WASHINGTON (UP) — Prospects brightened today for approval of at least part of President Eisenhower's defense reorganization plan. A key senator reported the administration had "lensed down" one of the plan's most controversial features.

Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.), a member of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, said Sunday the administration seemed to have taken "a far more realistic approach" to its request that the secretary of defense be given greater authority over military spending.

Stennis was acting chairman of the preparedness subcommittee when it heard Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy outline the reorganization plan on April 3. At that time, the Mississippian and other subcommittee members were markedly cool to the pro-

Bill Up to Permit TV Permit Sales

WASHINGTON (UP) — A bill was introduced in the House today to permit the Federal Communications Commission to sell radio and television station licenses to the highest bidder in contests between equally qualified applicants.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss' bill, designed to "prevent future scandals in the FCC," also would set up a code of ethics for the commission and would establish specific rules or awarding broadcasting licenses.

Meanwhile, it was announced the U.S. Court of Appeals will hear arguments next Thursday on the Miami TV dispute which led to the resignation of FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack.

The FCC asked the Appeals Court to return the case for its reconsideration after a House Commerce subcommittee aired charges that Mack accepted loans from an attorney interested in the channel award.

One of the issues was whether the matter will be returned to the commission or whether the court will go ahead and consider challenges of this award.

Reuss (D-Wis.), in support of his bill, said: "This is the kind of legislation required to restore public confidence in this important regulatory agency."

The measure would forbid commissioners from accepting "honorariums" or fees for speeches or posals.

The overall reorganization scheme Sunday won approval of a major veterans group. The National Executive Council of Americans ended a two-day meeting here by urging Congress to adopt the President's requests.

Amvets said reorganization of the nation's military was necessary because weapons "in the hands of hostile enemies" posed the greatest threat to American security in history.

Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.), another preparedness subcommittee member, said he thought the plan had been "worked on a bit" in recent days to clarify and "sharpen" some aspects.

The statements by Stennis and Case indicated a change in the way in which congressional military experts interpret the defense plan.

When McElroy appeared before the Senate subcommittee he said the plan, as then contemplated, would give him broader authority to shift funds from one branch of the armed forces to another.

The secretary's statement brought many complaints that the plan would deprive Congress of its "power of the purse."

Stennis made his comments Sunday after noting that McElroy said in a speech last Thursday that the plan only asks authority for the secretary to transfer a "minor percentage" of the 40-billion-dollar defense budget from its congressionally stated purposes to exploit "sudden technological breakthroughs."

Stennis, who predicted that Congress would never vote "absolute authority" over such spending transfers, said the secretary's new statements "sound all right."

Grabel Amazes Local Youths With Magic — Magician Will Perform in Hope on April 21

Don't miss the Lee Grabel Show at the High School Auditorium on Monday, April 21st at 7:30 p. m. Tickets are now in the hands of Youth Center members all over the City. These tickets, that are marked to sell at $1.50 will be sold for $1.25. School children may attend a 2:30 matinee for 35c or the night show for 75c. Children's tickets will be sold at the door only.

The Youth Center received four tickets from Mr. Grabel last week with an invitation to attend the Grabel Show that played in Little Rock last Friday so that there would be no doubt as to the quality of show that is to appear in Hope.

Mr. Grabel did all that he claims to do. He floated a girl in the air and allowed a lady from the audience to come on stage and touch her while she was suspended in space, then he exploded her in plain view of everyone.

He shot a girl from a cannon into a box that had been hanging from the ceiling during the entire show.

He pulled the famous "Houdini" escape act in which four men were cuffed up from the audience to help. The four men placed a girl in a sack and tied the sack at the top, then placed her inside a box that had been thoroughly inspected and locked the box with six padlocks, then wrapped the box in a heavy canvas and laced it tight. A tent was then held over the box by the four men who were able to see all around and behind the box, and in three seconds, Mr. Grabel changed places with the girl inside the box. When the canvas was unlaced, the box opened and locks removed, the sack was still tied with the same knot that had been used to imprison the girl.

Mr. Grabel pulled many other wonderful acts equally as amazing as the ones mentioned. He also spiced his show with a lot of comedy such as squeezing silver dollars from a youngsters nose and producing birds from the pockets of people in the audience.

He produced several other major acts comparable with his floating girl that are to numerous to mention and all in all had a very wonderful and interesting show second to none.

Please don't miss this show. If some teen-ager contacts you about a ticket, rest assured that you will get your money's worth. Mr. Grabel has given the Youth Center a very good contract with a chance to make a great deal of money if ticket sales progress. Remember you have only one week in which to get your ticket, so don't delay buy yours today.

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Enjoys Worrying — About Wrong Person

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a housewife of 23 and have been married five years. My husband gives me everything I need, he has always worked, is a good provider, adores our two children but we don't seem to get along. I've been tempted to leave him several times but just don't have the nerve. I am very nervous and admit I have a bad temper which I try to control — but don't always succeed. Our specific troubles are that we never seem to be able to stretch his salary (a good one) from one pay day to the next. I worry about his beer drinking, though he never gets drunk. Also, he snores, which makes me very nervous. I haven't been well; I go to the doctor every two weeks but he says he can't do anything for me until I stop worrying. But what can I do? I will always have worries. I take everything too seriously. We argue so much I'm afraid he'll lose his love for me, or I will no longer love him.

INA D.
Dear Ina: The witches in Macbeth couldn't cook a better pot of trouble than you've brewed for yourself. You really have to go some to find worry material in your excellent setup. You want to worry. It's a good way to avoid responsibility. Anything that goes wrong with your home life can safely be blamed on someone else — in your mind. You're still young enough to do something about it; let this habit cling for another 10 or 15 years and you're a dead duck. Ask your doctor about possible treatment. Co-operate with him as best you can. Then, having your physical house in order, have a talk with your clergyman. The market is flooded with mechanical devices to stop snorers from annoying their wives. Get one for your husband. Be a better companion to him, and he won't need beer to sustain himself. You have obligations, girl, live up to them. If you lose your husband you have no one but yourself to blame. Stop seeing bogey men and look for the sunshine once in a while.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I will be 16 in a few months. The boy I like is 22. He used to drink a lot, but doesn't do it so much any more. He said if I would go with him he'd stop drinking. Do you think he will?
ANNIE

Dear Annie: Fifteen is the age for fun — not reformation. The boys for you are clean-cut, honest classmates with whom you can share school activities. A drinkers promises aren't worth the air it takes to breathe them.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Although Bob and I are supposed to be going steady, he won't take me out Friday, Saturday or Sunday as he says those days belong to the boys. Do you think he really loves me if his boy friends are more important than I?

NONA
Dear Nona: Of course not! Bob simply isn't ready for dating — much less the steady variety.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have been secretly married for eight months, and am still living at home. Every time I ask my husband when we can tell people and act up housekeeping, he says we must wait until his rich aunt dies. He claims she's going to leave him her money if he remains single. He has a steady job and we can manage without his aunt's money. I'm getting tired of waiting.

MARILYN
Dear Marilyn: You'll be secretly married for the rest of your life if you continue to fall for such trumped up stories. You married an irresponsible liar — if you don't mind frank language. He has no intentions of getting involved in the obligations of housekeeping. My advice to you is: Try for an annulment.

Florence Nightingale, whose efforts to reorganize treatment of soldiers wounded in battle made her an international heroine, was a firm lady. In the Crimean War her vigilance reduced the death rate in military hospitals from 42 per cent in February, 1855, to only 2 per cent in June of the same year.

Racial Plan Gets Partial Agreement

By PHILIP NEWMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — It has been a week since a Little Rock man brought forth his plan to "resettle racial harmony" in Arkansas and already the state's racial issue has turned into a race to the point on which both record and integration leaders agree.

How do they agree? Neither has been refused. Most have offered condemnation. But that doesn't worry the plan's author, Thomas, he says. The "extremist" groups' opinion. What he's worried about is what the "masses" think.

No Stranger
The Arkansas Plan, as its author refers to it, was conceived and presented April to the state board of education by Herbert J. Thomas Sr., president of the First Pyramid Life Insurance Co., a stranger to integration problems. Thomas was, as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University of Arkansas in 1946, faced with the problem of having a Negro ask admission to the school. Thomas denied the undergraduate applicant admission. But later, he approved the application of a Negro graduate student. He reasoned that the colored law student had no other place to prepare for a law career.

Thomas plan involves "voluntary migration" to be worked out by an interracial commission on the local level. He suggested the Little Rock School Board be junked at the end of the present term. His plan would supplant it.

After A Week
What does Thomas think of the response to his proposal after a week of publicity about it? "It has been rather disappointing," Thomas said.

Most of the mail he's gotten has been encouraging. And there've been bomb threats or menacing telephone calls, he added.

As for the views of the "extremist" groups like the National Association for Advancement of Colored People and the Capital Citizens Council, "they're just about what I anticipated." For the record, Mrs. L. C. Bates, president of the NAACP in Arkansas, sharply branded the Thomas plan "unworkable." Furthermore she said "it seeks to hang indefinitely in abeyance the rights which Negro children are being denied."

Negroes Fit
The Rev. Holman Smith, one of 10 Negro pastors who filed a suit in federal court challenging the validity of the 1957 legislature-enacted State Sovereignty Commission, called the plan "unacceptable and opposed to by an overwhelming majority of Negroes in Little Rock and Arkansas." The Rev. Wesley Pruden, president of the Capital Citizens Council, said his group, being dedicated to "total and complete segregation" was "opposed to the Thomas plan since it is one of gradual integration." He predicted Negroes would also condemn it because they "want total and immediate integration in every field."

The funeral services for Leo Blatnik were held in the little white painted church that the Bohemian farmers had built a few years ago.

The farmers lingered behind and somehow, without any prearranged plan, the women found themselves gathered in the churchyard, while the men assembled in a corner of the cemetery. There was some idle talk for a few minutes, then a man named Kazumplik brought out the thought in the minds of many of those farmers.

He was a good man, but he's gone now and we've got to pick someone else to be our leader. "How about you?" one of the men asked.

Another man said, "I think we are going about this wrong. We cannot say so-and-so shall be the leader. That is as good as putting a price on a man's head. They killed Leo—they'll kill the next leader we choose."

Charlie Weber, who was at the edge of the gathering, suddenly said, "Have a gunfighter, that's what Pete Rawlings did." "How do you go about such things?" one man asked. "Where do you find these gunfighters?" "You hang around the saloons," Weber said harshly, "that's the kind of talk you hear in saloons. A gunfighter in Wyoming shoots down a man, you hear it here and everywhere else inside of a week or two."

The man Kazumplik regarded Weber thoughtfully. "We are farmers, all of us, even you, Charlie, but you are something else. You are a cattleman. Once you owned most of this valley."

Elvis Simply Not Available at This Time

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Army made it clear today that Elvis Presley is not available now for any singing dates—no matter how civic they may be.

Rep. A.S. Herlong Jr. (D-Fla.) said he found this out when he tried to get Presley to appear at an Armed Forces Day celebration sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce at Dade County, Fla. May 17.

The Army turned him down with this explanation:

"Private Presley is currently undergoing his initial cycle of training, which is vital in preparing him for further Army service. He is one of a group of recruits comprising a packet operating on a rigid and accelerated training schedule which all must complete together. It is contrary to Department of the Army policy to interrupt his important phase of his training except for compassionate or emergency reasons."

The letter concluded with the "regret that this soldier cannot be made available for participation in any civic project at this time."

Sputnik, Dog Disintegrate Sunday Night

By UNITED PRESS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP)—The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, despite a contradiction from Moscow, stood pat today on its announcement that the dog-carrying Russian satellite disintegrated Sunday night over the Caribbean.

Dr. John White, observatory information officer, said "we have nothing to add" to the observatory's statement that "the satellite disintegrated in a fiery plunge about 9 p.m. last night."

"We have not changed our assumption that the satellite is down," White said.

A dispatch from Moscow today quoted a Moscow planetarium spokesman as saying that Sputnik II still has not disintegrated and should pass over Moscow sometime tonight on its dying orbit.

What was believed to be a fragment of the satellite, probably a rocket engine, was sighted as an "orange-red glow" over Denver, Colo., 17 minutes later.

Dr. John White, information officer,

Denver nodded. Rawlings went out.

flier for the observatory which has correlated world-wide satellite sightings, said the fragment was not likely to have survived another orbit.

A blazing fireball with "a long tail of fire like a comet" was seen by hundreds of residents of Barbados, British West Indies, at 8:53 p.m. e.s.t. The flaming trail was visible for about a minute. One witness said it looked like "rockets falling through the air."

In the sea south of the Virgin Islands, three minutes later, the crew of a Dutch tanker saw a "fireball with a trail of sparks and smoke" falling toward the sea. The captain of the tanker, Mitrva, radioed: "Presumably it was Sputnik II."

An hour before the Barbados fireball was sighted, a farmer near Montreal, Canada, said a flaming object the size of a cart-rider fell on his farm, which he believed came from Sputnik II. Royal Canadian Mounted Police took the object for study.

The death of the "Mutnik" left only three U.S. satellites in orbit around the earth.

TV SETS INCREASE

WASHINGTON (UP) — More than four out of five households have a television set and about one in 14 has two or more sets, the Census Bureau reported on the basis of a sample survey in January.
